

Silverlake Customer Connect Conference (SACCC) 2025 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

Our annual flagship event, the Silverlake Customer Connect Conference (SACCC) 2025, once again brought together the brightest minds in banking and technology to explore the future of digital banking. This year's conference marked a significant milestone for Silverlake with the launch of CgW - The AI-Native Core Banking Solution, designed to enable banks to accelerate transformation, enhance operational resilience, and unlock a new era of intelligent, scalable, and secure digital banking.

Over the course of the conference, our keynotes, panels, and breakout sessions sparked thought provoking conversations on the trends and technologies shaping financial services today. From core banking innovation and cloud acceleration to AI-driven insights and ecosystem collaboration, every session offered practical ideas and fresh perspectives. These discussions demonstrated how technology, collaboration, and forward-thinking strategies are redefining the banking landscape.

The success of SACCC 2025 reflects Silverlake's continued commitment to advancing digital banking through innovation, collaboration, and future-ready solutions.

Contributing Thought Leadership in AI to Shape the Global Innovation Landscape

Silverlake Group CEO, Cass Goh, participated in the panel "The Great Divide: Open vs. Proprietary" at the Fortune Innovation Forum 2025, joining industry leaders to explore the evolving challenges and opportunities of open-source AI.

The session highlighted how open models are driving innovation, expanding access, and challenging monopolies, while also raising concerns around security risks and the responsible use of advanced technologies as AI adoption accelerates.

The conversation also underscored important implications for Southeast Asia, particularly with the emergence of China's DeepSeek, and how the region can balance innovation, dependency, and competitiveness in shaping its AI ecosystem.
